Essential Leadership Skills: Part I

A manager could be the smartest and most experienced person in the room, yet there's no guarantee that he or she will be successful at leading and supervising others. We'd like to help increase managers' ability to supervise and lead others. Based on our clients' desires to dive a little deeper, we are pleased to introduce our newest management training offering, a two part series designed to cover a wide range of skills essential for both newer and seasoned supervisors and leaders Part I explores the supervisor/ leader's relationship to their reports. Topics to be covered include expectation setting, feedback, tough conversations, and coaching and developing others.
